And warked some six or sight minutes when we observed the crowd in front of us visibly thoring, and several carriages turning up side streets. Presently, a few men appeared, running toward us, and a lond noise was heard in the distance. My first impression was that somebody had been run over, and that somebody had been run over, and that somebody had been run over, and that somebody else and the driver were, as a often happens at Rome, at stiletto points. Another second, and there were not three men between us and the centre of the noise, the cry 'in casa,'' 'to your houses,'' sprung up from I know not what quarter, doors within sight were shut, and we inferred a revolution. We had just time to esconce ourselves in a doorway when about a dozen carbineri, or Roman gend'armes, some on horseback and some on foot, galloping and running forming a line which stretched across a street not much wider than Nassau street, every one catting to right and left, every one with a

We found the street on both sides of the gate well filled with a religious progression malkers. Outside with passing carriages and walkers. Outside, there was a large force of police stationed, here and there, and many Italians sitting in

After dinner, between 6 and 6 1-2 o'clock, we were struck by seeing the Corso, the great street of Rome, crowded with people in carriages and on foot, so as to be almost as full as at the height of the camival. Of course this was the grande demonstratione of our landiady, and the police at the Porta Pia were ou the wrong scent, so I proposed to two friends a walk. Two or three blocks below the Piazza del Popolo, at the upper end of the Corso, two of us turned back. THE WEEKLY SENTINEL

Bix Months for Less than Cost of Paper and Printing !!!

_____ READ AND BE CONVINCED!

The approaching campaign is to be a memsesionsly between the friends and the enemies of Freedom, and the ground contested inch by inch. In view of these facts, it is apparent that the dissemination of Republican papers and documents becomes of vast and vital importance. In order to furnish the WEEKLY SENTINES to the people of the North-West, during the Campaign of 1860, we have concluded to offer the paper, FROM THE LOTH OF MAY TO THE 16TH OF NOVEM-BEE, at the following unprecedented liberal One Copy for These terms will barely cover the cost of paper before it is printed; but we have deternined to put the price so low that every individual K-publican, or organized Club, in this or adjoining States, will use their best endeavors to scatter the SENTINEL broadcast in their particular localities, and thus accomplish more than by the circulation of ten trees as many documents in any other form. Every Campaign subscriber will receive the Proceedings of the National Convention, to be held in May, and full returns of the election in November.

We need not arge upon our Republican friends the importance of placing this sheet in the hands of all. Let no votes, or family in the State, be without the SERTINEL during and the people have access to truth, Republicanism prevails. Send in your orders as early in May as possible. Der Address JERMAIN & BRIGHTMAN. MILWAUERE, April 9, 1860.

The Bissepresentations of the News. In its eagerness to traduce and decry Mr. Porrus, the Representative from this District in the Congress of the U. S., the News resorts to subterfuges, unworthy of any re speciable journal and justly condemned by fair-minded men, of all parties. Thus, in yesterday's issue, the News says:

ther hade of Tuesday morning contained an article group time true history of the transaction, and were it not that the kentined has thought proper to accuse us of misrepresentation and falsehood, we should close of misrepresentation and falsehood, we should close our root in to any further discussion of the course which led to the giving and accepting of the challenge. We maintain that the version we have already given of the afair is substantially correct. If Mr. Putter did make the remarks which the Sentined any he made, and which how seems to be the only matter in question, it is evident from all the circumstances of the tare, that Mr. Puter did not hear them; those gentlemen within the immediate we inity of Mr. Loveley did not hear them, and before it breaths necessary on the part of Mr. Potter, to provide a quarrel with Mr. Prop. that the postnashound be interpolated, and the would be chevalrous and he interpolated, into the condition of the little of the little on the condition of the

He provided the challenge from Mr. Pryor, accepted it of on terms which he knew to be barbarous, ungentlemantly, and without the code, and further, took good case that the authorities of Washington might easily had him, whenever it came to their knowledge that he was stolating the laws of the District.

Mr. Forres, so far from "thrusting himself forward," took no part in the matter, until Mr. Paron left his seat and advanced, with other Southern members, towards Mr. Lovesov, with the obvious and expressed purpose of interfering with "free speech."-Then, and not till then, it was that Mr. Por-TRE, like a true man as he is, stepped promptly to the side of his triend, and declared that

Potter and Pryor.

But Mr. Potter was actuated by motives higher and broader than any mere personal considerations. We doubt whether a braver man lives. He has that calm, self-reliant mortification of young men who has the constant of the constant the allegations made in the above extract, can be proved false by the record. That Mr. Porten did make the remarks attributed to lim, and was heard by the reporters and others, which is the proved false by the record. That Mr. Porten did make the remarks attributed to lim, and was heard by the reporters and others, when a law as a learn by the reporters and others, when a law as a learn by the reporters and others, when a law as measures its words and deeds, that never acts upon unreasoning introduced false by the record. That Mr. pulse, and moves forward to its position after a considerate estimate of ultimate consequences; and once having taken its ground, never delusion that Jack really did build a house! How surely must such a policy re-act to the dishounce of these whose sectation real. courage that always measures its words and we have already shown from the correspondence of the Tribune and the prompt testimony of Mr. Dawes, M. The explanatory debate on Wednesday be-tween Pryor and Potter, respecting what oc-curred on the day Lovejoy spoke, was a cul-minating point in the series of outrages heapminating point in the series of outrages heaped by the Chivalry upon the Republicans from the commencement of the session.—
"Thieves," 'traitors," 'imurderers," 'incendiaries," were the common current epithets which had been poured upon them for weeks. Lovejoy was repelling these assaults with glowing words and emphatic gestures. Pryor, advancing toward him in the most insolent manner, told him he should not stand in the arena, in front of the Chair, and shake his fists in a ruffianly manner at the members. Potter simply responded, "You are doing the same thing." That Potter thus said, and that it was a faithful statement of what Pryor was then doing, is unquestionable. And for these words Pryor challenged him. It is alleged at Washington that the challenge was sent ofter a confer-that the challenge was sent after a conference between someten or a dozen Democratic members, of whom Potter's colleague was one, at which the opinion was expressed that Potter would not accept a challenge. If this be so, then it is a striking proof of the oft-asserted fact that no Southern man will "call been in constant attendance at Potter's room, applicating him, while Pryor's friends are indignant beyond meas ure. They are in a bad predicament. They provoked a quarrel without reason. They were compelled to sacrifice Pryor's life or recode, and they very wisely did the latter. Mr. Potter was in earnest, and they knew it. He is one of those whole-souled Western man

Mr. Potter was in earnest, and they knew it. He is one of those whole-souled Western men, full of honor and bravery, while at the same time he detests this barberous mode of settling difficulties, but will not allow himself to be bulled. Pryor's position is an unfortunate one tetween the principals and their seconds, with the addendum of a supplemental ward from Mr. Chisman, embodying two written, but undelineered notes from Mr. Pryore of the House for the present session, and is perhaps the best thing that could have happened. The first Northern man horous' terms. To the last of these posthumous papers, the New suppends the following:

for no sympathy whatever.

Pryor's position is still worse, from the Pryor's position is still worse, from the fact that in a duel some years since, in which he appeared as second, he appointed for his principal rifles, fistols and Bowie-knives in succession. Which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession, which were accepted, his principal rifles, pistols and Bowie-knives in succession. It is safe to predict that if they shall reject the application of Kansas on pretexts, and the will be transparently frivolous, it will of itself cost thom a defeat in more than one Northern State.

Mr. Potter informs me he based his choice.

All of us sincerely hope that this will put an end to Congressional challenges and duelling."

THE VIOLET. BY MRS. L. E. GRAVION. The lonely dead may be forgot
By earthly friends and earthly foes,
And scarcely marked the humble spot
Where rests the form in deep repose;
Yet o'er the long-neglected tomb
The violet sheds it soft perfume.

There, in each spring, where rephysa light Are wh ispering 'mid the folkage green, And gaper howers are blusing bright Upon the grass-grown grave unseen, Enfolding its duth leaves of blue,

And where unfolds each tender leaf,
Through the bright day and starry right,
I gently passed its season brief,
Till close its eyes upon the light,
And then beside the dreamless dead,
It gently lays its drooping head. Mick flower—sweet messenger of love; Who knows but unto thee is atten, Some splittenistion from above? What if thy mission be from heaven? An emblem of immortal bloom To the pale steeper in the tomb.

Sweet blue-wed violet of the spring, Fresh bluwn beneath soft skies and showers, Why sadder thoughts to me now bring Than those of rosy smiles and hours? Ah! o'er the lone and anknown dead Has drooped, sweet flower, thy gentle head.

Oh! when within its narrow bed This form of mine is laid to rest, When the last fear for use is shed, And cold the warth lies or may breast, Then may no ruder eye intrude Than thine upon my solitude!

Description of Messes, Pryor and Potter. From the Cincinnati Commercial.

Pryor is about thirty-three years of age.

and very singular in his personal appearance. He is probably six feet and an inch high, and is unusually slender. His legs and arms are long, and if the westernism is not too strong, gangling. His movements are quick, resitess and impetuous, like his character.—His head is long rather than high, and circular The result is confirmed. Perfectly and in all cases.

The result is preparation in the prescription of one the most expression and in a strong, gangling. His movements are strong, gangling. His movements are strong, gangling. His movements are restless and impetuous, like his character.— His head is long rather than high, and gives a fair index of the very considerable intellectual power which he is known to possess.

The feature of his face is his nose, which is a lofty arch, the effect of which is increased by the thin sallow cheek behind it. He has this hair is by the thin sallow cheek belind it. He has no beard, and yet no one would mistake his countenance for that of a hoy. His hair is black and long, and worn combed back and black and long, and worn commen each and falling behind the cars. He is, we believe, the sending the market throughout the world. he is a fair exponent of the better class of his constituents.

John F. Potter, of Wisconsin, is a very different sort of a man, and is as true an example of Northern, as Pryor is of Southern manhood. He is what we might call sturdy. and is as excellent a specimen of physical symmetry and health as can be seen in Washington. He is not vary large, but is roundly and compactly built. He is calm, self-possesed, easy in his manners, and attractive in conversation. He wears his beard, which is slightly sandy, full, and his hair, which is brown, rather short than otherwise—neither flowing looks, nor bristles. Seen on Pennidowing looks, nor bristles. Seen on Pennsylvania avenue, going up from the Avenue House, where he boards, to the Capitol, or returning, he resembles a business man in good condition, and not particularly an xious on any subject, walking leisurely to his counting house after a good dinner. His step is springy, and there is so much elasticity in his movements, that if it were not for his clear, sober, steady gray eye, whose glitter is quiet and intense, and his honest, hearty, solemin face, he would be accused of freating himself. face, he would be accused of bearing himself jauntily.

Potter and Pryor.

From the Buffalo Advertiser. There will be no fight. The affair between the two bellicerent Congressmen whose names head this paragraph, which has exercised the telegraph far more than it has the feelings of the public, has terminated in a peaseful victory for Potter. It had come to be rather necessary that some Northern member should lay aside his scruples and accept a challenge. Potter was a plucky fellow, Pryor was a noted fire-eater and duelist, and this seemed to be a favorable opportunity tow, Pryor was a noted arra-easer and themst, and this seemed to be a favorable opportunity for a change of programme. Potter selected for his "friend" the well known Col. Lander, of wagon road fame, and the two together have succeeded in getting Mr. Pryor into a close corner. Potter accepts, and selects bowle-knives as the weapons. We must not construct this feroitum selection as blood. construe this ferocious selection as blood thirsty or inhuman. A decent duel should place both parties on rectly and acted like a sensible man in choosing the bowie-knife. It is a very Democratic institution, the bowie. It has no aristocrapy about it, and there can be no privileged class about it, and there can be no privileged class in its handling. It was just about an even thing whether Mr. Pryor should rip up the abdomen of Mr. Potter, or Mr. I'otter perform the Cæsarian operation on Mr. Pryor. All men are free and equal in the use of the bowie-knife, and it is moreover, a purely American weapon; although it must be confessed that it lacks the neatness of the pistol, which lets a man's soul out through a small and gentlemanly orilice.

We agree with Mr. Potter that the objection made by Pryor that the Bowie is an inhuman and barabrous weapon, has no force in the premises. It is no more so than the duello itself, which can hardly be consider. in the premises. It is no more so than the durilo itself, which can hardly be considered as calculated to delight the more refined and tender sensibilities. Mr. Potter was entirely right in his choice, and Mr. Pryor, having taken the initiation, was bound to accept the consequences. He is now in the position of a back-down. Shocking revelations had been made con-cerning the coolie trade in southern ports of China. The information is derived from de-positions of 105 men taken from the coolie receiving ship. An inquiry was ordered by the allied Commanders in Chief, and it was the allied Commanders in Chief, and it was found that in three coolie ships, two American and one Oldenburg bark, the coolies had been kidnapped, and a nominal consent to eight years engagement in Cuba was wrung from them by horrible modes of torture. Louis Blanc had made a most successful debut as a public lecturer.
